Our story

Robert and Stephanie Gourlay live on 110 acres in the pristine Mongarlowe Valley of NSW and have spent the past 20 years developing their Phi'on health products.

Robert, a scientist, is passionate about creating nutrient-dense products and structured (negatively charged) water to support the human body's natural capacity to regulate and heal at a cellular level.

Their philosophy is simple: Quality food and water are the pathway to health.

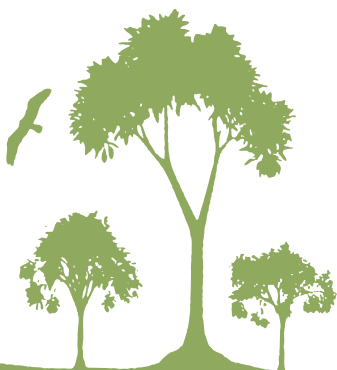

Phi'on products aim to address the prime causes of disease and are researched and tested to capitalise on the fundamental link between healthy soils, plants, water, animals and humans.

In addition to the science, the products are created with awareness of the subtle energy systems of the body and the earth.

"Our primary role in business is to educate people on how to live a healthier and longer life without disease and expensive health costs," Robert says.

From their Mongarlowe property, their products are freshly packed and dispatched to clients across Australia and the world.
